WILSON HEARS IRELAND'S CLAIMS

Women's Trade League Delegates and Varied Procession of European Visitors Made Busy Day For American Executive.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, April 17.—President Wilson has under consideration today a vast array of data secured when he heard pleas on behalf of lesser nationalities in an all day series of conferences Wednesday. The matter presented caused one of the busiest days the president has had since he came to Paris.

The delegates and American friends of Ireland, composed of Frank P. Walsh, Edward F. Dunne, and Michael Ryan, of Boston, urged the president have the conference hear fully the claims of Ireland for the right set up a republic. The great interest taken in the United States was pointed out and the president was given copies of resolutions adopted at American mass meetings.

England Interested.
The president's position is one of intense interest in England, the British government having taken the position that the Irish situation is a part of the British domestic policy.

One of the delegations consisted of two American women, Rose Schneiderman and Mary Anderson, representing the Women's Trade League. They presented a petition asking greater rights for women. The next delegation represented Syria. Memorials were presented requesting the establishment of an independent republic.

Representatives from the Dalmatian coast tendered a protest against Bi-Istrian armies.

Francis Wants Rhine.
Marquis de Vogue was the next visitor. He delivered the demands of the French advocates for the annexation of the Rhine valley.

M. Colander, Swiss foreign minister, discussed the selection of Geneva as the seat of the League of Nations with the president. The visitors kept arriving and were received in the following order:

The patriarch of the Orthodox Greek Church at Constantinople made a plea for the protection of the church.

Essad Pasha, governor of Albania, appealed for the independence and protection of Albania.

Baker Lunches With Wilson.
Dr. Cornelius, Greek minister to Italy, paid his respects.

Secretary of War Baker discussed war department matters with the president. They lunched together. Herbert C. Hoover, food administrator, reported on the world food developments and especially the manner in which food relief is being distributed in Germany and others of the central powers, where the people are in greatest need.

Dr. Alfonso Castile, president of the Portuguese delegation, presented claims on behalf of the smaller nations.

Dr. Vorhos, an Armenian leader, appealed for America's aid to establish an Armenian republic.

Dr. Pastiche, of the Serbian delegation, presented Serbia's territorial and economic claims.

A majority of the questions were presented to the president for final settlement.

LIFT MAIL RESTRICTIONS.

Permits No Longer Required for Packages to Overseas Troops.

The necessity of obtaining permission from the commanding officer of a military unit in order to send packages to soldiers in France has been eliminated, according to a notice sent to post offices Wednesday. This order takes effect immediately. Shortly after the arrival of the American troops overseas, post office officials were notified that all persons sending goods to the soldiers must first receive a request from the soldier for the articles sent. Then the commanding officer of the unit must pass on the request. Such an order was in effect until Wednesday.

It was announced such restrictions were necessary on account of the large amount of mail being sent to the soldiers overseas, much of which could not be used.

NEWBURN COP HERE

To Take Back Negro Accused of Abandoning Family.

Officer Martin of the Newburgh police force escorted from the Ulster county jail Wednesday afternoon a negro, who he arrested on a warrant charging him with abandonment his wife and seven children. The negro had been working at a shaft being sunk for the New York water department near Prattville and when Sergeant Seaborn of the State Troop, who he had come to arrest him, went there the negro had left the job. Sergeant Seaborn searched his files in Shandaken where he apprehended the negro and arrested him, bringing him to jail in his auto. About half an hour later Officer Martin arrived from Newburgh and the negro was turned over to him and he took him back to that city on the late afternoon train on the West Shore Railroad.

ALFRED T. RUSS IS STILL MISSING

No Trace Found of Rhinecliff Man Who Mysteriously Disappeared in This City Last Friday Morning.

No trace has been found of Alfred T. Russ of Rhinecliff, who mysteriously disappeared in this city last Friday. Mr. Russ for many years was employed by the Saugerties & New York Steamboat Company as agent at Rhinecliff. Last Friday he crossed over to this city on the first trip of the ferry transport. Arriving on this side of the river he went uptown on a trolley car and was last seen on North Front street.

Mr. Russ is about 44 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height, rather stout build and wore a brown mustache. When last seen he was dressed in a dark blue serge suit and wore a cap he weighed about 200 pounds.

The only photograph in existence is a small figure in a group picture. It was impossible to secure a good cut from the picture but the engraver has made as good a job as was possible.

No reason is known for Mr. Russ' mysterious disappearance as his accounts with the steamboat company were in order, and were found to be O. K. upon examination.

Any information regarding his whereabouts will be gladly received by Mrs. Russ by writing her at Rhinecliff, or notifying the Kingston police department.

CITY TAKES OVER COUNTY LABORATORY

The county bacteriological laboratory on John street has been taken over by the city, and will be maintained by the board of health. The laboratory was recently opened by the health board during the diphtheria epidemic and the state health department sent Miss Eleanor Easton, a bacteriologist, here to have charge of the work of testing the culture tubes and other laboratory work. The health board has been considering the advisability of opening a laboratory ever since the county laboratory was closed. The city needs one as was proven by the present diphtheria epidemic.

Wednesday afternoon the laboratory committee of the board of health and Mayor Canfield, president of the board, met with the supervisors' committee having the laboratory in charge. At the meeting it was tentatively decided that the city would take over the laboratory, paying $500 for the equipment. The city is to have the laboratory rent free and in return is to perform all public health work including charity work, which is to be O. K'd by the charity commissioners of the various towns in the county.

The health board is also to provide a bacteriologist to have charge of the laboratory, and is to furnish light and whatever chemicals or supplies that may be needed.

With the laboratory closed it has been necessary for physicians to send all cultures to Albany to have tests made. This has caused great delay and the fact that the county laboratory will be kept open by the Kingston board of health will be a great boon to the physicians of both the county and the city.

As far as known the health board has not engaged a bacteriologist as yet. Miss Easton from the state department is in charge and her work is meeting with satisfaction.

NORTHCLIFFE'S PAPER REPLIES

To Denunciation of British Premier in Commons—News Rejoices at Parting of "Great Brethren."

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, April 17.—"Never in British parliamentary history has there been a more terrible castigation than Premier Lloyd George's attack on Lord Northcliffe during his peace speech in commons yesterday," said the Daily News today. "The premier held to be a delusion Lord Northcliffe's belief in his own conscience and flung in his face his manifold inconsistencies. It is evident from the speech that the 'great brethren' have finally broken. Both politics and journalism will gain from the break up of the inglorious association."

"Apologize" is the heading which the Times, owned by Lord Northcliffe, placed above the speech. The Times said, in part, in its editorial comment:

"Of what sort will be the feelings of premier Lloyd George's colleagues in Paris, when they read the half truth, the false analogies for cheap rhetorical effect."

"The record of the Times during the present war crisis will bear closer examination than that of the premier."

WALSH TO AID STRIKE SETTLEMENT

Telephone Service Still Paralyzed, In Boston District—May Call On President For Aid.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, April 17.—The strike of 25,000 telephone operators, repairmen and cable splicers, which has disrupted telephone service in all New England except Connecticut today reached its third day with little prospect of settlement.

Washington reported that unless the strike is ended by tonight, President Wilson will be asked for instructions.

Strike developments today were: U. S. Senator Walsh arrives from Washington and promises to aid strikers to secure settlement.

Strike situation shows indications of slight improvement in suburbs and rural districts.

Boston and metropolitan district still paralyzed by strike.

Sixty strike-breakers were put to work at Worcester. One hundred applications for positions of student operators accepted by telephone company in Boston. Girls and men continue peaceful picketing through all night rains.

STATE WHEAT IN PRIME CONDITION

Only Four Times in Twenty Years Has Winter Wheat Been Better on April First, Reports Show.

The fine growing weather of last fall and the mild winter have been unusually favorable to winter wheat in this state, according to the report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, transmitted through the New York State College of Agriculture.

Only four times in the last twenty years has the crop on April 1 been reported in better condition.

Between Syracuse and Buffalo, where four-fifths of the winter wheat of the state is grown, the crop is reported to be unusually good.

In other parts of the state, there has been more or less damage from alternate freezing and thawing; the average condition for the state is reported at 32 per cent of a full crop.

The condition of rice is reported to be 85 per cent, which is about the average for this time of year.

The two negroes were arrested by a federal agent at Lawrenceburg.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

TERMS SATISFACTORY TO "BIG THREE"

No Opening For German Wedge Between Britain, France and America—Wilson Feels 14 Points Upheld in Treaty—18 Small Powers Also Ready For Germans.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, April 17.—President Wilson feels that he has not surrendered any of his fourteen peace principles, it was declared today by a member of the American delegation. At the same time, the president has been able to harmonize the views of the French and British, whose pledges to the people are unimpaired. It is now virtually certain that the Germans will be asked formally to accept the principles of the league of nations, although they will not be admitted to the league at present.

On the eve of drafting of the treaty it can be said with official sanction that the American, British and French delegations feel satisfied with the terms agreed upon. All are in perfect harmony. The relations have been most cordial, so that any fears that might have been entertained in pessimistic circles that the Germans would attempt to work in a wedge between the Big Three are groundless. The Germans, when they arrive will find the Americans, British and French lined up as one.

Polish Situation Cleared.
Premier Paderewski of Poland was again heard by the Polish commission. The Polish situation is gradually clearing and no further serious obstacles are anticipated.

The Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish sections of the general treaty will probably be in that order. If the German section is out of the way, it is understood that a suggestion is now under consideration for the sending of separate American, British and French commissions into Turkey to investigate and report separately.

Small Powers Also Agree.

Representatives of eighteen small powers that declared war on Germany held a meeting and it is understood that all are in complete accord on the steps to call in the German envoys.

Speculation is now centering on the length of time it will require to draft the voluminous treaty and how soon it will be before the German signatures are affixed. Certain influential delegates favor a time limit of one week for the Germans, including the time it takes them to come to Versailles, return to Weimar with the terms and then return again to Versailles.

When the Germans come to Versailles the initial sessions will be held at a hotel. The only meeting at the Trianon Palace will be when the Germans are ready to sign.

U. S. Constantinople Mandatory.

There is renewed talk that the United States may become the mandatory power for Constantinople and Armenia. Americans in Paris, however, are not sure that the inclusion of Armenia would meet with approval at home, but some are inclined to believe that the taking over of Constantinople would be an honor and would give America an opportunity to show the world her wonderful efficiency.

It is known that Great Britain would like the United States to take over Constantinople for protective purposes and France probably holds the same view. The question of Greece is not serious, as it is considered that the mandate should go to a first class power.

New Pains Soldier Dead.

In the casualties corrections sent out by the war department Wednesday night, Frederick Kingston, New Pains, is listed as dead, having previously been reported missing.

ULSTER'S LIBERTY LOAN QUOTA IS $2,583,500

Of That Amount Kingston's Share is $1,734,100—This is $477,900 Less Than the Last Liberty Loan Quota in Kingston.

Ulster county's quota in the Victory Liberty Loan is $2,583,500 while Kingston's share of that amount is $1,734,100. These figures were announced by the Liberty Loan committee.

Kingston's third Liberty Loan quota was $2,212,000, and the present quota shows a decrease of $477,900 from the quota at that time.

Both the county and city committees having the launching of the campaign in charge are working hard at plans for carrying the drive to a successful close. Kingston and Ulster county have always gone over the top in the past, and there is no question but the same results will be obtained in the present drive.

The Liberty Loan drive opens Monday, April 21.

"COMMUNITY SING" ON APRIL 22ND

All Are Invited, Whether Trained or Not, to First Civic Songfest—A Sound Movement With Helpfulness as Only Motive.

The first public meeting to advance the Kingston Community Chorus work will be held in the high school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, April 22. This meeting is open to the public without any admission charge and a large attendance is looked for by the committee in charge of this work.

At this meeting song books will be distributed and after a very brief explanation of the Community Chorus work everybody in the audience will be asked to join in the first "Community Sing" under the direction of Harry Lodge.

Membership in the Community Chorus is open to everybody in the city. There are no tests or trials necessary to go through in order to obtain membership and there are no technical requirements such as are met by those desiring to join singing societies. All who desire to sing for the pure joy of singing, regardless of their ability to read music, are invited to join the Community Chorus.

The gathering of people to make or be thrilled by music—national, familiar, inspiring—is and always will be the natural stimulus of patriotism—also its proof. We have too little popular music of this sort.

If the Community Chorus thrives this year, as it undoubtedly will, it will come forth stronger than ever next year and its success will result in a decided advancement of the general spirit of the city. It deserves the hearty co-operation of all who can increase its membership or help to meet its needs. The city will be richer for the experience gained through the operation of the Community Chorus. It will find a way to shake off a lot of its old habits and imbibe the new habits of helpfulness and co-operation. Few sounder movements have ever been started in the city.

Everybody should give their hearty co-operation and evidence this by attending at the meeting Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The following list of names shows the members of the committee:

Mrs. Willis Hills.
Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker.
Miss William Lawton.
Miss Ellen Hasbrouck.
Mrs. C. R. O'Connor.
Mrs. F. J. Higginson.

so that the subscriber to a note of the Victory Liberty Loan may utilize them with the maximum of convenience. There is a detachable subscription agreement to be signed by the subscriber and filed with the bank with which the subscription is made, and when the agreement has been duly signed and accompanied by a payment of the initial amount required on application, the subscription from which the agreement is detached constitutes a receipt for payment. Subsequent payments may be made at the bank designated by the subscriber, at which time the first coupon, while still in the book, is stamped paid, and at the same time the next maturing coupon is validated. This provides an automatic check for the protection of the subscriber.

No writing of any kind is required after the opening of the account.

The system proposed by the Government Loan Organization to persons living outside of New York city is expected to solve the difficulties encountered by subscribers in previous loan campaigns.

Notes of the Victory Liberty Loan are brought, with the aid of the coupon book within the reach of every one of the thirteen million of more persons who reside in this Federal Reserve district. The payment of $2 down and $1 a week for forty-eight weeks affords a convenient method of subscription and gives an opportunity to every patent person to assist the government.

The partial payment plan being the way to acquire one or more Victory notes, the most remunerative investment of the war period. It is a method of saving money, and it is a method of saving money.

The coupon book is an incentive to thrift. It helps a man or woman to save systematically. It is a valuable bookkeeper for the provident person.

HUNGARIAN COMMUNISTS

Want to Eliminate Bourgeois and Disapprove Russian Methods.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, April 17.—The foundation of the communist movement in Hungary is the elimination of the Bourgeois, according to information from Moscow today. Most of the leaders are radical socialists and not real Bolsheviks, it is said. They do not intend to suppress their disapproval of the excesses which characterized the Russian revolution. They are afraid of their own extremists and are trying to be "moderate."

"The Immortal's Second Wife" will be the play presented at the enter-

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 17, 1919.

Mr. Bryan demands "a league of sober nations," but only Turkey and the United States seem to be quite ready for that yet.

Whether people who do the least work want to attract the most attention, or somebody complains, they certainly do the most talking.

The high prices are climbing down a bit but are exceedingly careful to avoid anything like a sudden tumble with accompanying bruises.

West Virginia, determined to discourage "flying dragons" with bottles in their claws, has enacted a law providing that airplanes also may be searched for "booze."

The average young woman is supposed to be willing to eat less in order to dress more, and yet a Pennsylvanian is reported to have separated from his wife of two months because of her "enormous appetite." Exceptions prove the rule.

New York is to have Sunday baseball, Sunday movies and Sunday fishing, the same legislature that voted for the prohibition amendment having generously provided all these Sunday amusements.

A European writer is quoted as saying that the coward wins battles in his imagination and thrashes his enemies at a distance. He should have added that even a man of parts is apt to "think up" his best arguments after a battle of words is over. The imagination works best when nobody is around.

It is not surprising to hear that a Vienna doctor has discovered the "hunger germ" in these times of short rations. The first cave men made the same discovery the first time they went out with their stone axes and failed to kill any meat.

The Bolsheviks of Russia have decided, according to report, that "the control of desires or impulses, even when self-imposed, is against the freedom of man." In other words, fling wide the doors of hell, abolish law, and put to check upon murder or any enormity, so that there may be "freedom" without limit. Great doctrine!

THE SAVANNAH'S VOYAGE.

Savannah, Georgia's oldest city, is shortly to celebrate in a series of pageants several of its important historical events, including the hundredth anniversary of the sailing from its river front of the "Savannah," the first vessel propelled by steam and sail to cross the Atlantic. The ship sailed on May 26, 1819, and reached Liverpool on June 22, later extending the voyage to St. Petersburg and everywhere attracting great, wondering and admiring attention. It is related that the excitement attending her departure from her home port was far surpassed by the sensation caused by the Savannah's arrival in Liverpool, where she "entered the harbor belching black smoke from her tall, belching funnels and with her sails unfurled presenting an unprecedented spectacle." Although it was regarded as too hazardous for the Savannah to rely wholly on her engines and steam power, it is said her side wheels drove her through the water during no less than eighty days of the voyage.

The Savannah was under the command of Captain Moses Rogers, who 11 years before, had taken the famous Clermont of Robert Fulton on her maiden trip up the Hudson river. The modern reader would naturally expect to hear that the first steam-propelled ship sailed from New York Harbor for England, and this calls attention to the fact that the Southern ports of Savannah and Charleston were of much greater relative importance a century ago than they are now.

CAUSES OF THE MISTY.

The story comes that the misting among American troops in Russia was largely the result of Bolshevik propaganda across the lines in the form of pamphlets accepted by American officers because paper was needed and they were ready for anything that might help keep the troops happy. This story is not entirely credible, in view of the known cunning and untruthful character of Bolshevik propaganda, but there was already no little explanation of the disinclination of an American company to go back to the firing line until their colonel in a stirring address appealed to the traditions of American arms. Even before they were—if they were—led to think that the Bolsheviks were not such bad fellows after all, those drafted young men from Michigan towns had begun to wonder discontentedly why they were still kept at war in the Archangel region of Russia months after the Teutonic arms had yielded and actual if not technical peace had been accomplished.

The 5,000 American and 30,000 British and French troops were sent to the Archangel section to prevent military supplies at the Arctic port of Kola from falling into the hands of the advancing Germans. This made the expedition a perfectly legitimate one while we were at war. It has been said that the pre-occupation of the three allied governments named prevented the withdrawal of the troops after the armistice. Probably the freezing up of the Arctic ports was the real or the chief reason, for it has been announced that withdrawal has been ordered for early summer. In any case the troops felt neglected and some of them may have thought they had been left to their fate. That a weakened morale should result under such conditions is not surprising.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

The Stroller Hears that Those Shouting Government Ownership are Getting a Taste of What it is Like—Another Boost in Freight Rates Coming.

"Well I see by The Freeman," remarked the customer, "that the government is going to give the railroad employees $60,000,000 more a year."

"Who wouldn't be a railroad man," replied the busy barber, with a grin.

"Funny though," continued the customer thoughtfully, "but just as soon as the government takes over any business we poor consumers have to dig down in our pockets."

"You know," replied the barber, "that it is darn easy to spend somebody else's money, but when it comes to spending your own—well that's another story."

"You said something," commented the customer.

"You know and I know," continued the barber, "that for years past there has been a holler for government ownership of the public utilities, but those who have been shouting the loudest are not making such a big time about it now, for they are just getting a slight taste of what it means."

"Well as long as I can't get it," replied the customer, "I am glad to see the railroad men get it."

"And incidentally you and the rest of us who are not railroad men or working for any other industry taken over by the government are helped to pay the increase, but what is a few dollars more or less among friends," said the barber.

"And even the telephone company is boosting rates," complained the customer.

"It is no more than you can expect now that our democratic government has taken over the business," retorted the barber.

"I wonder where all this boosting is going to end?" sighed the customer.

"Pshaw," commented the barber, "this is just a beginning, and the only remedy I can see is to start a League of Consumers, and boycott everything we think is too high in price. Probably when President Wilson gets the League of Nations fixed up he may have fourteen more points to spare covering such a proposition."

"It's not such a bad idea at that," thought the customer.

"And while you are thinking it over," replied the barber, "just get ready to pay another boost in freight rates which is due shortly, thanks to the Wilson administration."

Get good clothes quality—it's the only way to save money

The war taught one lesson; that good quality is economy. People had to make their money do more; they found they couldn't afford poor quality; they couldn't take a chance; they bought good stuff because it saved. Don't forget that lesson; it still holds good—buy clothes of good quality; they cost less because they last longer. We back that up with a money-back guarantee.

MAKE your cooking quick, comfortable, and inexpensive. A Florence makes all canning, baking, broiling, and cooking so convenient and pleasant that you no longer shrink from them even on the hottest days. Save on fuel bills—coal is expensive. Save your health—kerosene is expensive.

Come in any day this week. Let us show you how simply this strong, long-lived oil stove works. See how the ram of a lever and the touch of a match gives you a clean, hot flame close to the cooking. No wicks to tend. No danger. We will gladly tell you all about the comfort, convenience, and economy of cooking with oil.

"Look for the Lever"

The Fuel Administration authorities us to say that it considers the use of Oil Cook Stoves and Oil Heaters at this time a very important help in the necessary conservation of coal for war purposes.

Our new stock of Oil Heaters just in. We can't save 80¢ gas in Kingston this year and until we do why not use kerosene ranges. The Wickless Oil Stove costs only 12¢ per day for fuel. Can you beat it?

FALL TO BOLSHEVIKS

Bolshevik forces are now engaged with the Rumanians along the whole front of the Linea river.

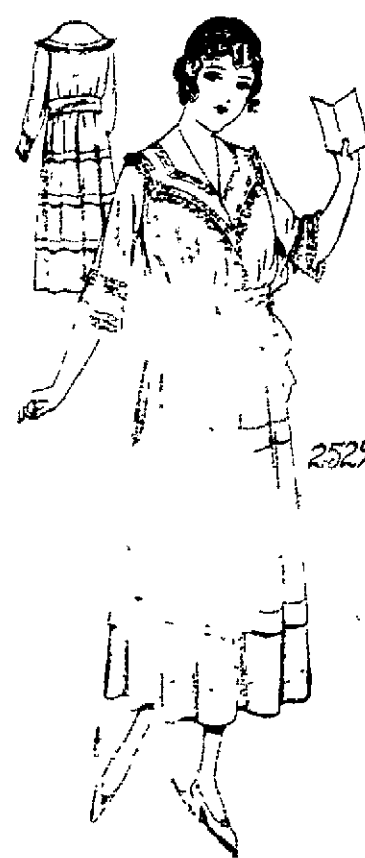

"BUDDIES."

Is Compliment to Salvation Army Workers From Soldiers.

"Buddies" is the name given the Salvation Army workers, both men and women, by the famous "Devil Dogs" of the Fifth Regiment, United States Marines, with whom they served. The title "buddies" is considered a high tribute of military rank for those outside the regiment, and was conferred upon the Salvationists in recognition of their hardships of sleeping in dog tents in severe weather, and other discomforts and dangers of the battle front. Returning marines of the devil dog division tell of the bravery of the Salvation Army women sometimes stationed as near the front as the second line trench.

"When we first landed in France," said Sergeant George A. Sapp, of the Fifth Regiment Marines, "we found the Salvation Army active and on the job. On our arrival at the trenches the Salvation Army ladies were already there and served us with doughnuts and hot coffee. On our return to the states the first ones to greet us with free telegrams to send to the folks back home, were the Salvation Army ladies."

ARMY MEN HAVE BEST EDUCATORS

American Army University For Men Overseas Offers Instruction Second to None 40 Kilometers South of Dijon.

On Active Service With the American Expeditionary Forces. March 28, 1919.

Dear Friend: Very glad to receive your card of Feb. 23rd. Seems good to see pictures of old familiar buildings that I know so well.

You will notice my change of address. Probably you have read of the big university the A. E. F. has opened here. It's big baby alright and it's been interesting to go through the "teething" process the past couple of weeks. Remember the army started this with just a camp in the process of construction and had to open up a big university in a country where the language is different than our own. Some job, I'll say. The faculty is made up mostly of officers who had formerly been teachers, though there are several "buck" privates teaching as well as quite a few "w" men. We have some of the best educators in the states here.

As you may know, I spent considerable time in the—so am continuing some studies in agriculture, besides taking some practical work at the engineering college. We had a great time the first two weeks as the place was not ready for us. Instead of attending classes we got out and built our future class rooms, levelled off the grounds, etc. As a Looney said, "You came here thirsting for knowledge, so we'll have to quench it," and they nearly did. They were calling for one detail of men after another, so some fellow suggested an A. E. F. U. yell like this: "Detail, Detail, Detail, Rah, Rah, Rah."

This camp was originally built to be the second biggest hospital in the world. There are hundreds of buildings here, mostly concrete one-story affairs. We live in these and the "colleges" are one-story wooden shacks, the greater part having dirt floors with shavings spread over them; muslin windows and tar paper roofs. You will see a big cardboard sign "College of Law" or "Fine Arts College" tacked on such a building, and no one comments on it. We are not living in the states, not by a long shot.

The weather is quite cold here yet, and as most of the class rooms have no stoves we sit around with our overcoats and hats on—Oh, yes, we have chairs now, though the first week we all had to stand. In one of my classes this a. m. the sun was shining brightly through a window, so the Captain Prof. said: "If you want to get warm you can move up your chairs." So every one moved up into the sunlight. I doubt if you ever attended a college like this.

We have a fine library—the "fine" refers to the books not the library, which, by the way, has a concrete floor, rough board tables made on the spot and book cases with tar paper tops so rain coming through the roof won't damage the books. You can't beat the army. We use a lot of makeshifts, but always get there.

Had a fine trip getting here from Bordeaux. Came by way of Paris, where I had several hours between trains. I saw Paris last fall, so I made for the "Pantheon de la Guerre" at once. Have you read anything about this famous war painting? The part which each ally played in the war is shown in life-size figures, and they are all so real, you almost imagine they can talk.

It's one of the things you surely want to see if you come over here. Beaume (Cote D'or) is a very pretty little city. We are about 40 K. south of Dijon. My course ends about June 1st, so I don't expect to get back home until the middle of the summer.

Sincerely,
SAMUEL S. KLEIN.

ACCORD.

Accord, April 16.—Deputy Sheriff Slater is feeling rather broken up as the result of being the unfortunate victim in a rear end collision Saturday afternoon as he was returning from St. Joseph. We don't know whether he was engaging in a race with Mr. Barnhart or not as we thought he had sworn off such habits since his unfortunate experience with Mrs. Davenport's horse. Jim, several years ago, but the fact remains that as Mr. Barnhart, who resides near Lehigh, tried to go by his horse crashed into the sheriff's wagon throwing him out and turning the wagon upside down. His horse was bruised quite a little but not seriously injured.

Due to the storm last Friday evening the Mechanics were unable to initiate the class of candidates who were to have taken their degrees. The class of twelve candidates will be

AMUSEMENT PARK SEEMS ASSURED

The Kingston Amusement Park Association closed the deal yesterday involving the purchase of the Alvin Wood property which adjoins the Mosher land purchased by them a few days ago and now a total of about 11 acres have been secured for the new park that will be erected at the foot of North Front street at the junction of Joy's Lane. The committee are now awaiting figures on the grading and preparation of the grounds for the construction work that will convert this spot into one of the finest amusement centers in the Hudson river valley.

There are about forty merchants of the city on the liberal subscription list and they are working enthusiastically for the progress of the actual work in connection with the details of making the equipment of the park include everything that is essential for an up-to-date rendezvous for outdoor sports. The present plans call for a race track, baseball diamond, place for the production of a circus and many other features that will distinguish this spot to all amusement seekers in this section of the state. There are negotiations now under way to secure a city baseball team for Kingston in the Hudson Valley League and they will, if secured, play their home games at the new park.

More detailed plans and features that will pertain to Kingston's new park will be published in the near future and it is assured that the town of the city will receive no traceable improvement through the influence of the outdoor sporting center that is to be so ideally located in the uptown section.

VALUE AND COST OF MILK STRESSED

Second Annual Exposition To Be Staged In New York City Armory--Opens Next Monday.

With the period of surplus milk coming on when every farm is interested in its consumption as large as possible, the holding of the second annual milk show in New York city becomes of importance to every farming community.

The exposition which will be similar to that held last year, will be staged in the big 71st regiment armory beginning next Monday, April 21, and continuing throughout the week.

New York state has appropriated $20,000 for an exhibit which is being arranged and conducted by the state department of farms and markets. In addition to New York state's exhibit the states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey are also planning displays.

Costs To Be Shown

Some of the features will be a demonstration of the Warren formula or the factors which enter into the cost of producing milk, a demonstration of the food value of milk through its preparation and sale of milk products, the manufacture of milk products such as butter, cheese and cream, and an exhibit of milk and milk products, together with statistics and graphic presentations of the size, extent and distribution of New York's milk industry.

Producers will be represented by an exhibit of the Dairyman's League which will set forth actual conditions on dairy farms, together with cost of production of milk in the month of April.

It is hoped that the dealers will also report their exhibits of last year. Other features of the exposition will be forums on the costs of milk production, costs of milk distribution in the city, and the food value of milk.

AGRICULTURE

The man who wants apples this year acts on this job. The calyx spray retards the codling moth.

Any man can work when he feels like it. The successful man works whether he feels like it or not.

The man who brags about being old fashioned is likely to mean he is too old to learn anything new.

Remember the farm horse is quiet when he goes to work in the spring. Take particular pains to see that his collar fits well to prevent shoulder calls.

Welcome the return of the birds and remember they are good friends of agriculture. Send to the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y. for bulletin R C F 76.

It's a Kentucky philosopher who gives a neighbor as saying that any cow's udder can't tell him nothing, and it's certain as he's wore out three farms already.

All farmers may not know that the attention as to the use of egg-laying for agricultural purposes have been given. This does not mean that the use of egg-laying is being given up, but it does mean that the use of egg-laying is being given up.

Many Will Attend School Benefit. Peter Rogers, of the State College of Agriculture, under whose direction a dinner will be given at Park Hall, Wall and Main streets, on the evening of April 20, for the benefit of the school, a former colleague of the hotel case who was seriously injured at the explosion at the plant of the American Grounds Loading Company a few months ago, and has since been incapacitated from work by reason of an injury sustained to an arm, expects that the sale of tickets will be up to expectations and that a large crowd is expected at the dinner.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NUTTY CHUM'S BREAKFAST.

"Hello, what is your name?" asked Chippy Chippy, the squirrel.

"Yes, what is your name?" asked another squirrel named Bright Eyes.

"You'd like to know my name, eh?" asked the third squirrel, in a very cross, scolding voice.

"We would," said Chippy Chippy.

"We would," said Bright Eyes.

"How do you know that you are 'Hello, What is Your Name?'" asked the third squirrel.

"We don't," said Chippy Chippy.

"We don't know whether we will know it or not," said Bright Eyes. "It all depends on whether you tell it to us or not."

"Of course it all depends on that," said the third squirrel proudly and haughtily, as he sat up on his haunches and looked first at Chippy Chippy and then at Bright Eyes.

"Well, do tell us," said Chippy Chippy, who was very curious.

Bright Eyes had more pride than Chippy Chippy. They were both curious, but Chippy Chippy would swallow his pride many a time when his curiosity got the better of him, whereas Bright Eyes wouldn't.

"If he doesn't want to tell us his name, and if he is going to make such a fuss about it," said Bright Eyes, "I don't care to know it."

Chippy Chippy looked a little bit disappointed, and Bright Eyes continued: "I'm just as good as any squirrel, and I don't like to see such silly pride and such crossness and such superior manners for no reason at all."

Bright Eyes began to run across a branch and Chippy Chippy followed, though he looked back at the third squirrel to see what he was going to do.

"Come back, friends," called the third squirrel. "I won't get so proudly any more. But you know I come from the city. I'm not a country squirrel."

"Now, squirrel," said Bright Eyes, "do you wish us to talk with you or not?"

"Oh, yes," said the third squirrel. "I do."

"Then," said Bright Eyes severely, "I do not wish to hear any of this silly talk. You are no better than we are because you came from the city. I suppose you think because you lived in one of those parks that you are better than we are who have the great woods for our homes? Well, you are not better. It doesn't make a scrap of a difference where a creature is born or where a creature has been living. Everything depends on the creature himself."

During this long lecture Chippy Chippy was looking at Bright Eyes with amazement and wonder. Bright Eyes was so brave and daring. "Why," continued Bright Eyes, "if you were so proud about being in the city why did you come to the country? Ha, ha, that is a give-away. That shows me the kind of a squirrel you are. If you were so fond of it there why did you come to the great woods?"

"I can answer my own question. You wanted to be in the beautiful country, but you wanted to put on airs about having been in the city. You wanted to make use of everything we had here and yet act as though you were a little better than we were. Now, young squirrel, you can't do that with us. We're not going to put up with it."

"I was very foolish," said the third squirrel, "pray forgive me. I see that you are right. And let us be friends. I'll share my breakfast with you."

"My name is Nutty Chum. I was named Nutty because I was so fond of nuts as a regular squirrel should be, and I was called Chum because every one liked me. I tried to be foolish here, but I just had a silly turn. Please forgive me."

"You will see that my name of Chum shows that I am very friendly and sociable and pleasant. And the name of Nutty shows that I am a good, everyday sort of squirrel."

"That's right," said Bright Eyes. "You were foolish at first, and that was why I talked to you, so as to knock it out of you before it was too late, and you had such habits stuck on you, and every one hated you. You're a good sort and we will all be friends."

So Chippy Chippy, Bright Eyes and Nutty Chum became the best of friends and Nutty Chum accompanied them and those on his breakfast party that he would never be foolish and proud again.

"A Cold Blooded Business Proposition"

YOU'VE heard people say it.

"The American public are tired of patriotism now that the war is over. The only thing that will appeal to them is a cold-blooded business proposition."

All right! Let's see what kind of a cold-blooded proposition this is.

Seventy-two thousand Americans went to France and "invested" all they had in Liberty—and were killed before their "dividends" came due.

THAT was a "cold-blooded business proposition."

Two million other Americans went to France, too, and willingly offered to get in on the same "investment." And they knew they'd never "clip a coupon."

THAT was a "cold-blooded business proposition."

Thirty million other Americans here at home got in on that "investment"—saved and went without things for a year and a half to do it.

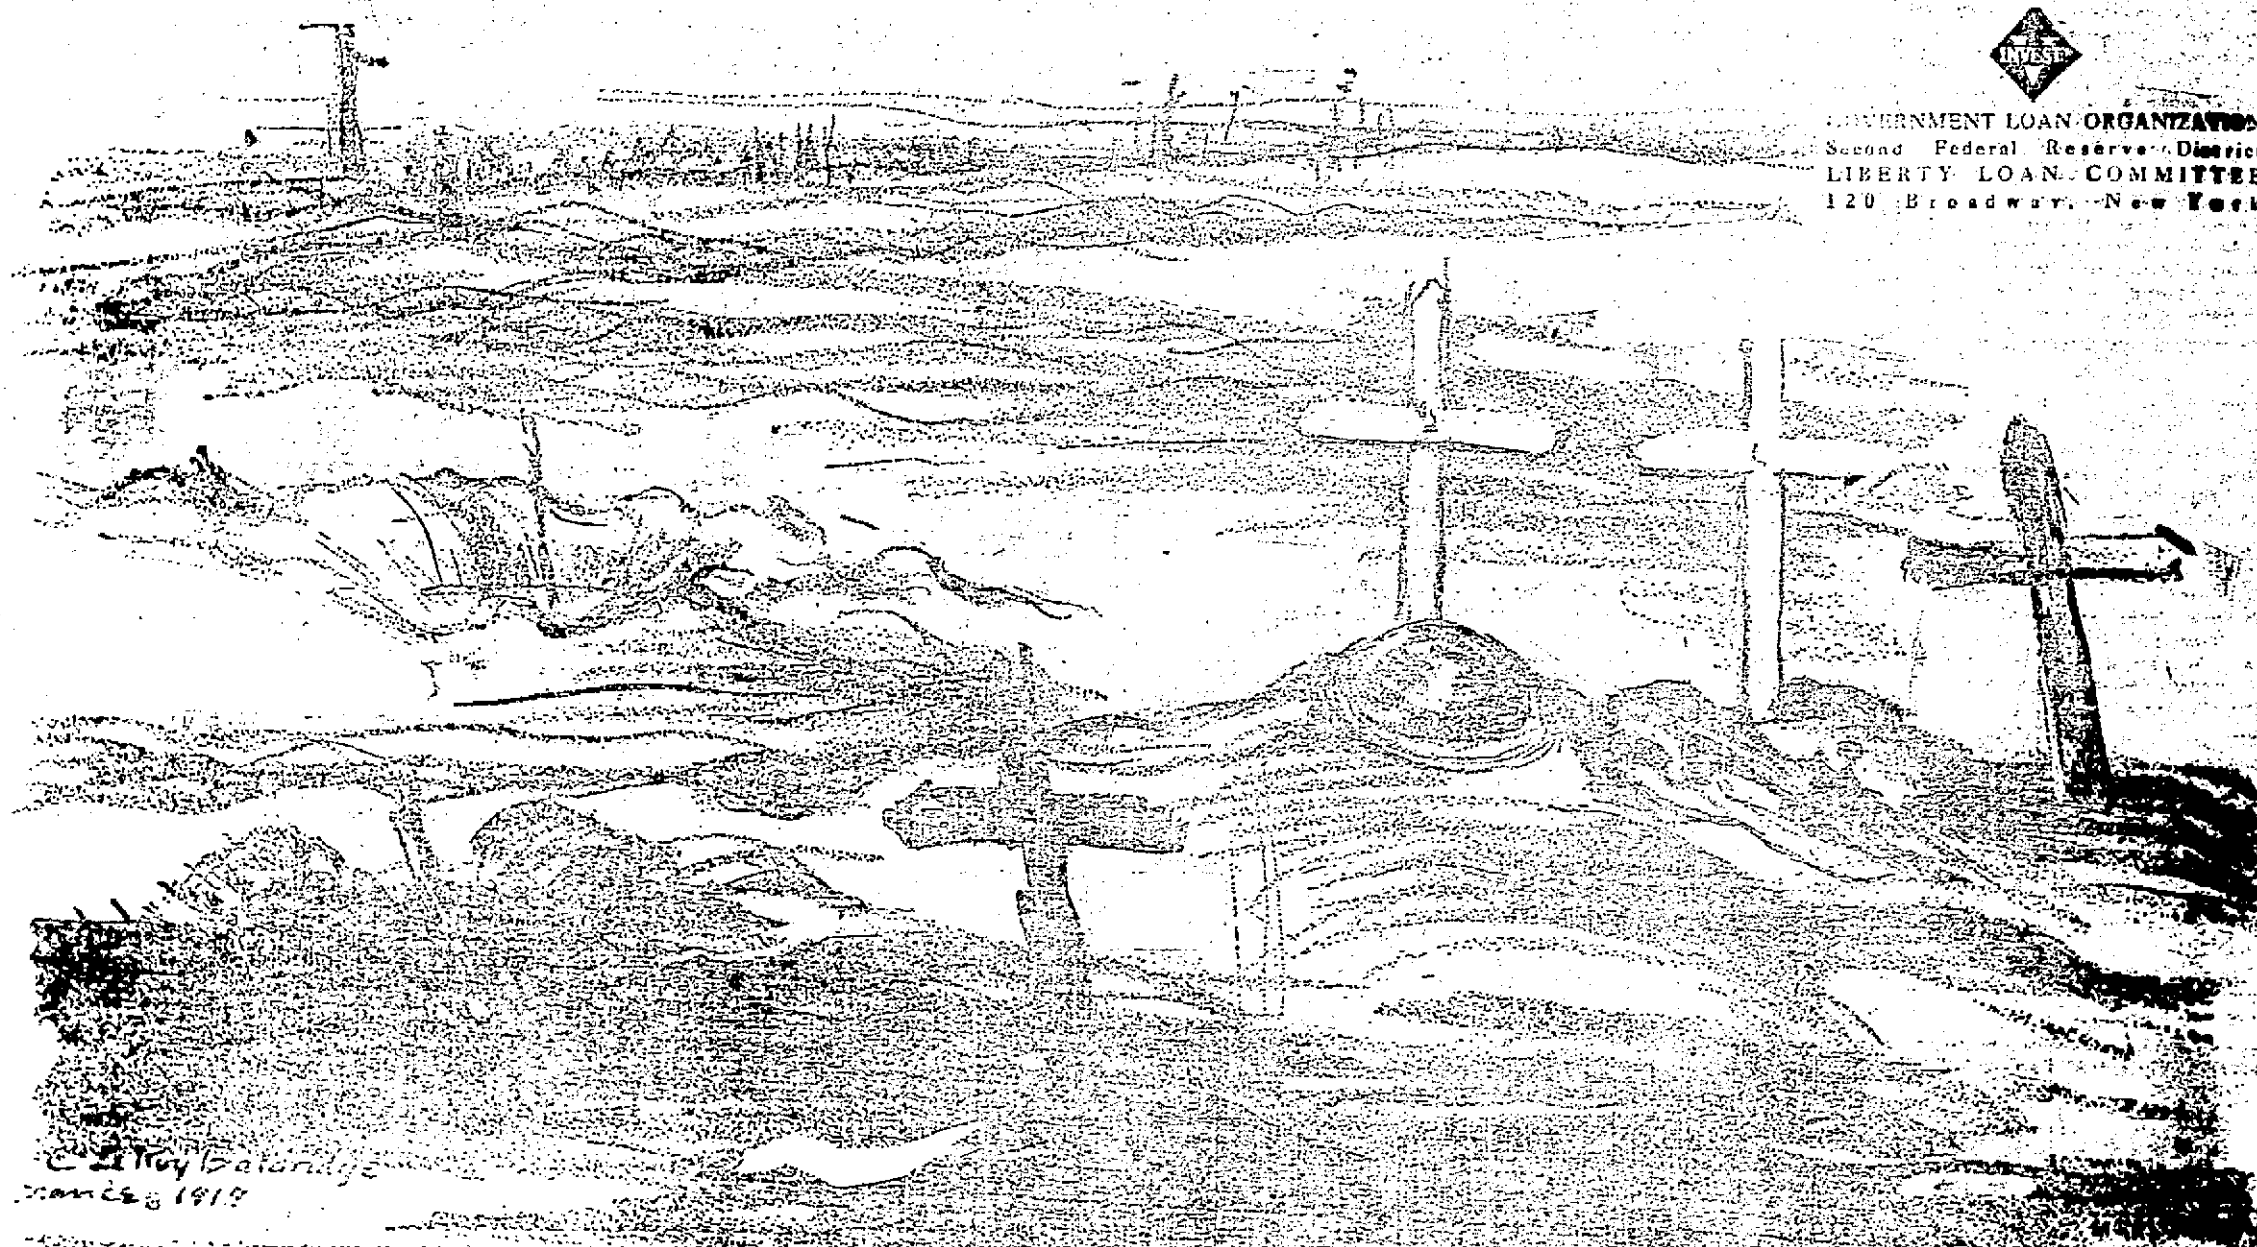

THAT was a "cold-blooded business proposition."

Well—we've still got a job to finish. And we're still Americans. Do you believe we're not going to do it in the old American way?

The only "business proposition" we're interested in just now is the proposition to see the job through right—to a finish—with whatever American dollars and whatever American energy it may take.

That may be a "cold-blooded business proposition."

Some people call it patriotism.

For such ideas are the reflections of the ideas of the divine mind. Plato believed that our ideas are born with us. That divine ideas are embodied not only in us, but in the world; therefore a study of the universe will result in the discovery of the ideal principles with which all things are governed. So a perfect life is in harmony with the divine ideal. Such was Plato's method of constructing a based system of idealistic philosophy. Plato was above the political conflicts of his time and hence he shows the world joined in its peace and most tranquil frame.

Minutes Count.
Most folks do not seem to know that eternity is a matter of minutes. In youth the days seem long, and the months are eternities. That is equally true when the picnic doesn't come until after the Fourth of July. It's about as bad as waiting for Christmas. But the days pass on just the same and every one adds some thing to eternity. As life widens its into an new meaning. Time races off its wings and your youth widens from its folds and surrenders. All this linked to multiplications of itself makes eternity. After all eternity is nothing more than the sum of life's hours added to all the hours that have been or are to be. They are the sum of the minutes and in them lies the secret of eternity—still.

Explaining New Stars.
The discovery of new stars, which each day turn for a few days and then spend thousands of miles in space, reminds one of the great number of the heavens. In 2, 1918, the American Observatory found that the sudden appearance of the stars is equal to any theory of radiating, and that the time duration and relative frequency make it unlikely that the phenomenon is due to direct collision of two dark stars. The idea of radiating stars is dark or faint stars passing through an immense nebula and leaving a trail of light. This is the cause the "new" stars.

and therefore the possible changes can be clearly explained.

Origin of Belts.
The use of belts originated in superstition. They were first used in China, a great many centuries ago, and their original purpose was to dispel and clear the air of "evil spirits" also to break up and drive away storms. From China belts were eventually introduced into Europe. Old records tell us how the belief of this kind "spirits of darkness" from invading people while in the act of worship. Hence the association of belts with churches. It was only in a very recent date that belts were used for holding the people to church. For ages they were designed solely for keeping evil spirits at a safe distance.

Burmese Novels.
Although the production of books of all kinds fell off in recent years, the novel industry in Burma has been in the increasing number of Burmese novels in the permanent market.

Unmarried Success.
A young man and woman, who had a child together, but whose parents were not married, were both successful in their careers. The woman was a successful business woman and the man was a successful doctor. They were both very happy and successful in their lives.

Orchids as Window Plants.
There is a new sort of a large family of orchids which is now well as a window plant. It is one of the "lady slippers" variety and known botanically as Cypripedium. It is found in a greenhouse. It is found to do quite well in a more moderate temperature. Blooming quite freely. The flowers are large and showy, having a white and yellow color. The flowers will remain in perfection for weeks or months. It requires no special care except being watered, and to see that it is not overwatered. An excess of water is likely to injure the roots. December to April is the blooming period.

Rich Chinese Province.

Shantung, the Chinese province which Japan has been demanding from China, is a mountainous province 100 miles wide, which projects outward from the mainland into the Yellow Sea for 200 miles. Its area is about 55,000 square miles. The central portion is occupied by mountainous mountains, extending in a north-south direction. The southern and north of these mountains lie the Shantung plains of the great alluvial plain of north China. East and southeast of the mountains and throughout the province are many fertile valleys and small plains. The produce is well watered, though the lakes are few and small, and there are no rivers of importance except the Huangho, which traverses the great plain in the west and north. The Grand canal runs through the whole province from north to south. Agriculture is a flourishing industry and the crops include some cotton, a little rice, tobacco, wheat, corn, etc.

BEARDSLEY WITNESS IN SENATE PROBE

Senator Thompson Wants Time To Prepare For Burke's Cross-Examination—Must Pay Own Counsel.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, April 17.—State Senator George F. Thompson, instigator of the investigation by the senate judiciary committee of the $500,000 fund, will not be prepared to go on tomorrow with the cross-examination of Richard H. Burke, characterized by Thompson as the "go-between," who made the offer of the bribe to him. Senator Thompson declared today he would insist on this phase of the inquiry being put off until next week to give him sufficient time to prepare to riddle Burke's testimony which was a complete denial of Thompson's charges.

The judiciary committee has decided that Thompson will be permitted to cross-examine Burke only by counsel and the committee insists that Senator Thompson pay the counsel.

Senator Thompson declared that Senator Alphonse W. Burlingame, chairman of the committee, was in favor of a thorough investigation. There have been intimations that the committee will conclude without probing deeper into the various charges.

The committee was prepared to go on today with the examination of Judge Samuel Beardsley, an attorney for the Consolidated Gas Company, of New York, from whom Burke said he sought a $15,000 loan to finance a furniture company, which Thompson asked for.

Fire In Poughkeepsie.

Fire, believed to have started from crossed wires in the old main building of the Poughkeepsie Hospital, Poughkeepsie, destroyed that structure with most of its contents and for some seriously threatened the entire hospital shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. Prompt work on the part of the hospital's own fire unit before the arrival of the city companies and a southerly wind kept the flames from spreading to the main building where are housed most of the 132 patients of the institution. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

Transport Sierra Docks.

P. S. C. CONTESTS 'PHONE RATES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, April 17.—The Public Service Commission, Second District, today directed its counsel to institute proceedings against the New York Telephone Company to prevent increases in local telephone rates. It is understood the company does not intend to increase rates in New York city and Buffalo, but in other localities increases are general and considerable, though not uniform.

This is the first test of authority between this state and federal wire control commission.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, April 17.—The stock market was influenced again at the opening today by continued offerings of stocks in a large volume similar to that which has been in progress for the last few days. It was assumed that this selling was regarded as usual when approaching a practical triple holiday. Steel Common made a gain of 3/4, 93 1/2, and it quickly yielded to 93 1/2, and it was closely followed by all the other active issues. United Cigar Stores was an exception, yielding only fractionally.

There was a good deal of confusion in stock market dealings during the forenoon, with the Steel issues well in supply. United Food Products was active and strong, moving up over two points to a new high record of 73 1/2, while Central Leather rose one point to 78 1/2.

The market showed a somewhat heavier tone during the afternoon. Mexican Petroleum reacted 3 points to 108 1/2, while Texas Company yielded 2 1/2. Industrial Alcohol sold at 151 1/2 and reacted to 151 1/2. The shipping issues dropped about one point. Steel held steady around 93 1/2, while Baldwin dropped over one point to 91.

The market closed steady; government bonds unchanged, railway and other bonds steady.

The Blood Pearl

By ALBERT DORRINGTON

"The thief must be punished," Sashino intimated blandly. "It was a gem of strange orient and millness. I am told it had a blood mist. There are men here who saw it."

The crew of Japanese shellers muttered silently on the oyster-strewn deck of the Three Moons. The sea was as still as a sleeping child. In the far north a few ragged palms marked the limit of the Vanderdecken bank, where the sleeping sun birds drew over the mile-long fleet of working luggers.

Sashino was captain of the Three Moons, and he repeated bitterly the frequent thefts of pearls from his lugger. The tricks of the average diamond thief become ludicrously apparent when compared with the almost superhuman evasions of the Japanese shell opener. Captain Sashino had grown subtle with experience, but his smiling patience gave out before the constant pilferings of almost priceless gems.

Four coolies appeared from the forward hatch carrying a naked Japanese diver. A stern silence awaited him. For a few moments he remained sulenly inanimate, cigarette in mouth, his bare toes kicking scraps of opened shell across the deck.

Captain Sashino regarded him contemptuously from his station near the main hatch.

"You steal my pearl, Insumi, the one you found on the Black Lip bank. I am willing to hear you. Say what!" Insumi hunched his reef-scarred shoulders, cast furtive, sidelong glances at the crew, and was silent.

"What made you steal?" Sashino repeated. "The German buyers or your sweetheart in the town? Say quick!" Insumi frowned.

"I work hard, Captain Sashino, for small pay. Only once or twice have I taken a little pearl. My sweetheart does not ask me to steal."

He turned again to the crew, as though expecting a friendly demonstration on his behalf. There was none.

A windlass-hand wearing a coolie long-cloth, was holding a baited line over the port bow. Incidentally, a pair of tiger sharks drifted from the shadow of the lugger's keel, and remained motionless within a few yards of the bait.

The pearl thief folded his arms submissively, as one expecting punishment swift and unannounced. The silent wrath that moves Japanese legions to impossible assaults flowed from the captain's features. He turned to a diver at his elbow and whispered. The crew, catching his meaning, became suddenly alert. A volcanic rage swept over them. Oaths of strange origin and dialect filled the air. Captain Sashino nodded twice and called to the windlass-hand with the baited line.

Three men caught Insumi by the shoulders, and fastened the line about his waist and hips, leaving his arms free.

"Over!" shouted the captain. "Let him keep his knife."

Insumi was dangling over the bows, his breast and feet nearly touching the water. The tropic sun pierced almost to the sandy floor of the straits. A tiger shark does not always swoop to the object in sight, but will sometimes inspect it for a short period, then vanish for a brief space and return with the speed of a hawk.

The thief lay suspended within an inch of the water, his knees slightly updrawn. The knife in his right hand was held point out from his face. Above him leant the crew of the lugger, telling him in fluent Japanese that thieves and sharks were the spawn of devil men.

An inquisitive snout appeared under the lugger's bow: a pair of swinish eyes began to regard the suspended Insumi with patient interest, then, moving slowly in a straight line, flashed suddenly under his chest. Insumi's back arched as the gray bell-scent beneath a quick, grunting stab followed, and the water grew crimson for several yards. He breathed hoarsely and wagged his bulging head.

"Fool!" sneered the captain. "The scent will bring others, and they will hustle him to death like Americans!"

A loud thrashing was heard near the heem. The strong tide swept the red stains clear of the lugger. For a period that seemed like centuries the suspended man looked eagerly into the water as though listening. Then, with a sudden frantic movement, he tried to turn toward a torpedo-like shadow that rushed from the shelter of the lugger's stern. A splash, wide as a saucer, appeared on his naked hip.

"A mistake!" chuckled the captain. "The old shark has got him now. It will be a slow fight, my children."

A hot stillness hung about the straits. The Jap lay motionless, eyes set almost touching the water, his glance fixed immovably on the troical slugs that that strayed within gunshot of the wreck. Neither the tide nor the shape of the diver could sway it on.

"The big fish is playing with him," smiled the captain. "Do not make too much noise, my children."

Then an unexpected commotion happened in the water: a school of small sharks began to sport about the diver's ankles. With a rippling movement of the wrist he ducked into them right and left, slipping them like a school of mullet. One blue-crested booby, now cowering under the reef, tore at his ribs as it escaped under the lugger's stern.

Within thirty seconds the school returned and the fight began again. The watching divers screamed excitedly over the lugger's rail, while the baby marks grew clever and harassed Insumi on the off side. They clung like leeches, eluding his knife thrusts, retreating and attacking with the speed of torpedoes.

Breathing astorously, he held up an appealing hand, once, twice. A cold, unresponsive silence followed, while the captain lit a cigarette.

Then, as if by a signal from the outer deeps, the swarm of sharklets drew off. Some one pointed to the trowel-shaped fin moving once more to its quarry. Many of the pearls know if for one of the oldest monsters that inhabited the great reef-plateau. Dozens of treping behemoths had attempted its capture without success, but the human bait now offered was more than it could resist.

There was no deviation from the line of attack: it flashed straight under the Jap's ribs. With the strength and fortitude of his kind the suspended man thrust his left hand into the open jaws. A second later his knife arm was slashing at the upturned throat.

For a moment it seemed as though the rope would break under the strain. With lunatic strength he appeared to be holding the shark at arm's length beneath the water. Then, with a cry, he stabbed downward again and again until his head dropped forward.

"Heave up!" shouted the captain. Slowly they hauled him over the rail, and they saw that his left arm was torn and shredded where it had entered the gaping mouth.

The captain surveyed the hurt man calmly. There was no trace of emotion in his voice as he addressed the assembled crew.

"Fear will not make him speak. The pearl is somewhere and we may yet find it. Take him below and see that his hurts are attended to. There is an English doctor in the town."

Late in the afternoon, when the sun's rays lay in streaks of fierce red across the straits of Torres, a dead tiger shark drifted under the lugger's stern, past the bobbing heads of the naked divers. Around it swarmed a ravenous shoal of black bream and yellow-tails gurgling, flashing their silver scales near the wide gash under the upturned throat.

Incidentally a dory pushed off from a tiny pier at the inlet's mouth, and rowed slowly in the wake of the dead monster. A Malay diver and a Japanese coolie sat at the oars.

The dead shark drifted beyond the great oyster bank where the long sea grass swayed and rippled in the outgoing tide. Leaning from the dory the Malay thrust a boat hook under the shark's dorsal fin, and drew it with much labor under the lee of a palm-sheltered promontory.

"Sashino's glasses cannot follow us now," he panted. "There will be no need to hurry with our work."

The shark was beached, and, after a careful survey of the surrounding scrub, the Malay drew a long sheath knife and passed his thumb gently over the point. Then with a dozen deft strokes he laid bare the huge gullet while the Jap coolie plunged his fists inside.

The two men grunted on their knees beside the dead shark, searching and probing with the craft of deep sea fishermen. The surf rippled and screamed over the low sand dunes as the tide receded beyond the mangrove belt.

The Malay's head came up with a sudden jerk. Drawing his hand from the bared throat of the monster, he held it aloft exultantly.

A pearl of peculiar luster and orient gleamed between his finger and thumb. The sun rays seemed to illumine it with supernatural radiance as he held it up for the Jap's inspection.

"If a thief cares not where he puts his arm, comrades, there are always good hiding-places for a ten thousand-dollar pearl!"

A chuckling sound escaped the Jap as he bent forward to inspect the pearl which the desperate Insumi had thrust into the monster's throat.

"Insumi was born with a curse in his palm. I saw Sashino look into his hand before they swung him to the shark. I could not hide a head in mine!"

A few days later Insumi, his left arm swathed in bandages, met his two comrades at the house of a Chinese-pearl buyer near Deliverance inlet. After much haggling and delay Insumi received $30 for his share in the deal.

The Most Beautiful Queen.

LEGISLATURE WILL ADJOURN SATURDAY

Senate Minority Leader, To Whom Governor Has Left Matter Of Opposing It, Believed To Realize Impossibility Of Putting Through Democratic Program.

By Telegram to the Freeman.
Albany, April 17.—The legislature will adjourn Saturday. Governor Smith said today he had left the whole question of adjournment to Senator Foley, minority leader in the senate, and that if he is convinced that no further action can be gained in trying to force the assembly to pass the welfare bills, adjournment will be permitted Saturday.

The Democrats, with four Republican insurgents in the senate, have so far been able to postpone adoption of the adjournment resolution, calling for cessation of legislative work Saturday.

Senators Frederick M. Davenport and J. Samuel Fowler, are ready to switch back to the Republican majority and vote for the adjournment resolution. The governor said today that he had agreed to sign special messages explaining the passage of pending legislation, so that the legislature could get away on Saturday. But he said it had been agreed with the legislative leaders that his action could in no way be construed as giving approval to the action the assembly has taken in killing his social legislative program.

STONE RIDGE COURSE

On Home Nursing Ends—Dr. Laidlaw Gives Interesting Talk.

The fourth and last meeting of the Home Nursing Course being conducted at Stone Ridge by the County Home Economics Association was held at the Grange Hall Wednesday afternoon. The subject of the meeting was "Preventive Measures." We all know "An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure." This was clearly and forcefully brought out in a splendid talk on "Prevention of Communicable Diseases," by Dr. Laidlaw of the state department of health. Everyone present was intensely interested in all that Dr. Laidlaw had to say and many questions were asked.

In spite of the rain the meeting was well attended. The women of Stone Ridge are to be complimented on their community spirit which was so splendid during the war and is continuing in their Red Cross and Home Economics work since the war. That they have found out the pleasures and benefits to be derived from working together has been shown in these all day meetings they have been holding since the home nursing course began. In the morning the women met to sew on the refugee garments for the Red Cross, at noon lunch was served—the women taking turns in furnishing this, and in the afternoon the home nursing meeting was held. At the close of the meeting yesterday many of the women mentioned how much benefit they had derived from this home nursing course and how sorry they were it had come to an end.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Berryman of No. 23 Lindale avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Viola Helen, to Earl C. Snyder of New York city.

The dancing class and assembly dance of Prof. Clyde Van Steenburgh will be held in Pythian Hall tonight as usual. There has been comment to the effect that these classes were to be discontinued by Prof. Van Steenburgh but it has been ascertained that they will be held every Thursday night as is the custom until the later part of June. In popularity these classes are growing weekly and the attendance for the past winter season has been a record breaker for past years. "Curt" Shurtler will continue to furnish the music for dancing. The assembly dance starts promptly at 8:00 o'clock following the instruction period of 7:00 to 8:00.

Atharhacton Club Elects Officers.

The final 1918-19 meeting of the Atharhacton Club was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, Miss Lillian Nelson. Following the serving of light refreshments, the club elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Miss Noone; vice president, Mrs. John W. Eckert; recording secretary, Mrs. Edgar N. Palen; corresponding secretary, Miss Marion Herbert; treasurer, Miss Ellen Van Slyke. One new member was admitted to the club, Mrs. Henry S. Dunbar. Annual reports, interesting in nature, were read, and topics for the individual papers were drawn. The subject to be studied next year being "The Short Story." This was the last meeting of the Atharhacton Club until fall.

Jumping to Conclusions.

"There is a license in this country which a great many judicious people regret."

"Do you mean the marriage license?"

A Proof.

"They say she is wildly wasteful." "So she is. I counted three lumps of coal lying on her pavement after the coal cart had driven off."

HER IDEAL

By HELEN E. IVERS.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

After a long and boring evening, Roy G. finally said "Good night," receiving a very chilly answer on Joy N.'s part. Mrs. N.'s "Good night," was said in a plying, apologetic tone. After the door closed, she turned to Joy.

"You don't know when you're well off, Joy," she cried. "Here you have the chance to marry a young man with good prospects and who loves you. Yet you spurn him. I had to come in here tonight, for fear Roy would go to sleep, your conversation was so interesting."

It was a fine bit of sarcasm, but Joy did not mind. "He is not my ideal, mother," she said. "The man I marry must be better looking than he is, and I don't want him to have good prospects; he must be enormously rich."

Mrs. N. sighed. It was certainly no use to talk to Joy.

Two weeks later, Joy went to New Hampshire for her usual autumn vacation with her grandmother. She expected to have a better time than ever this year, because her grandmother had written to tell her that there was a house-party about half a mile away. The party was chiefly made up of young people.

They were a jolly crowd and she enjoyed herself immensely, but all were glad to rest for dinner. While Joy was dressing, Christina James, one of her young hostesses, came into the room.

"You look fine, Joy," she said after surveying her guest. "I want you to look your best tonight, because a man has just come, whom we want you to meet. He's the catch of the season, dear, and as he doesn't care especially about any of us, we want you to see what you can do."

At dinner, therefore, Joy was introduced to King W., the aforesaid Prince Charming. Her heart throbbed, suddenly, on seeing him. Where had she ever seen such a man before? He was tall and light, with sympathetic dark brown eyes, a wonderful smile, and an engaging personality.

On the other hand, Joy herself was a bewitching little creature. She had quantities of wavy, chestnut hair, violet eyes, and a clear, transparent complexion. King W., who admired pretty faces exceedingly, immediately attached himself to her and rarely left her side during the evening, while the other guests nodded their heads and smiled knowingly.

For the next few days, she was in the seventh heaven. Every place that she went, she was accompanied by King, who proved to be wonderfully congenial. It may be added here that he was always thus with every girl he knew—it was this way that endeared him to all the feminine sex.

It developed that he had a wonderfully mellow voice and nobody but Joy could play his accompaniments suitably.

Two days before she was to go home Joy went back to her grandmother's to stay there for the remaining time. King was a constant visitor, and she became more and more enraptured.

At the end of her vacation Joy came home, her heart completely enveloped in clouds. She did not notice Roy's absence until her mother, who had waited for her to ask where he was, volunteered the information that he was away on business.

One day after her return King called. He decorously acknowledged Joy's introduction to her mother, and after the latter left he talked pleasantly for 10 or 15 minutes.

"I came to tell you something," Miss Joy, he said.

Joy's heart fluttered. She felt that she could guess what he wanted to say. He went on.

"You know," he said, "it has been inevitable that I marry some day, and my mother promised that she would help me in the search for a suitable wife. I may tell you now that she has succeeded." Joy gasped as he took a picture out of his pocket and showed it to her. "You see, mother is almost particular and her judgment in finally picking this girl shows her excellent taste. The girl is a dream, is she not, Miss Joy? Of course, it goes without saying that she is rich. Mother would never allow me to marry a poor girl. Why, Miss Joy, are you faint? Your lovely color has completely disappeared."

"Oh, I'm all right," Joy managed to answer. Although her eyes were irresistibly opened to the kind of creature her former idol was, she pulled herself together and remained calm until the end of his visit. Finally he took his leave and courteously bade Mrs. N. farewell.

Meanwhile Roy hastened upstairs and burst into the room where Joy was. To his surprise she was lying face downward on the sofa, the apron and handkerchief beside her gently lifted her head. She started at seeing him, but it was a happy surprise, for Joy had found that ideals aren't all they're cracked up to be.

At suppers she came down with a suitcase gleaming on her finger. Her mother looked at it and smiled ruefully.

"What one, Joy?" she asked. "Have you found your ideal in Mr. W.?"

"No," Joy answered, smiling radiantly. "When do you suppose? At present I am engaged to a poor but desperate young man with good prospects, and some time in the near future he and I are to be married. Mr. W., well, he was a fleeting decision, that's all."

Our Peace Envoys Emphasize Importance of Victory Loan

In a message to the American people the United States delegates to the Peace Conference at Paris, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, General Tasker H. Bliss, Colonel E. M. House and Henry
White, emphasize the necessity for successfully floating the Victory Liberty Loan. The importance of making the Allies' victory complete is stressed in the statement that it is necessary that internationally as well as nationally the campaign go "over the top."

The message reads:
"We have had the opportunity here in France to see and realize the magnitude of the accomplishment of our country in this war and the magnificent spirit with which this great task has been carried through to a triumphant issue."

"What has been done and what remains to be done before our national conditions are restored demand your continued and united support with the same spirit of self-sacrifice and of determination as that which was manifested by the nation while the German armies faced our men at the Marne and in the Champagne, at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne. We must not relax our efforts until every soldier of the republic is landed on the soil of America."

"The finish this mighty task imposes upon the government of the United States a great financial burden. The Victory Liberty Loan must thrive. It is should fail it would indicate that the nation is willing to leave its task uncompleted."

"To secure the funds for which Americans fought and died this great demand on national patriotism and united effort should meet a generous and universal response. Let us all do our duty to the end."

"ROBERT LANSING,
HENRY WHITE,

"E. M. HOUSE,
T. H. BLISS"
